

A Paragraph is like a Hamburger

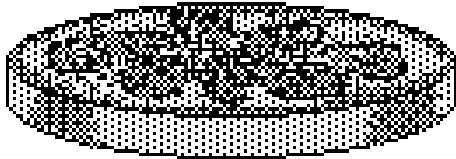

Make sure that your paragraph has all of the “key ingredients” just like a hamburger!

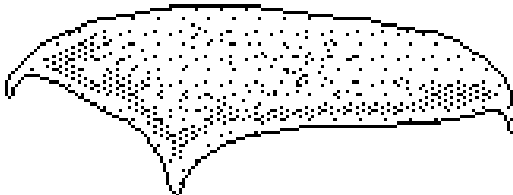

Topic Sentence or Lead

The topic sentence tells your reader what the main idea of the paragraph will be. You want to “grab” the attention of the reader, but do not give specific details yet.

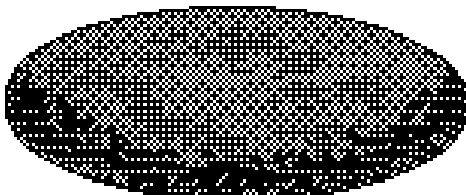

Supporting Detail #1

You want to select details that help to explain more about your topic.

Supporting Detail #2

You want to select details that help to explain more about your topic.

Supporting Detail #3

You want to select details that help to explain more about your topic.

Closing Sentence or Conclusion

In your closing sentence you try and restate the main idea using a different choice of words.
